This Week in Wabash

Hello, Wabash,

Happy Monday. I hope your week is off to a great start. It certainly has been very snowy today and yesterday. I put a call out on our Facebook page for your snow pictures and I've already received several great responses. Head over there now if you haven't already and submit yours.

As I mentioned two weeks ago, I am working on a longer story package now and I am once again using this week's newsletter to ask for your assistance.

In a couple of months the Plain Dealer, along with a few of our sister papers in the region, will be publishing a series of special sections about the opioid crisis. We're going to be looking at this problem from all angles: What is the current state of the opioid crisis in the community? What are some of the ways the community has approached mitigating or helping those who struggle with addiction? What resources are available for family members who are struggling to help their loved ones? Are there stories of recovery and what advice can they provide to those who are struggling?

These are just some of the questions we'll be seeking to answer. I'm sure there will be many more. I am reaching out to you today to see if there might be something you could contribute to this series? Have you or someone you know struggled with addiction in the past? Have you seen any initiatives or recovery programs operating in the community you'd like us to highlight? Do you have an idea of an area that could use more attention? If you or someone you know might be able to help us find these answers please reach out to me. I really appreciate any assistance you might be able to provide.

Well, that's all I have for you today. I hope you have a great rest of your week.

Best,
Rob
